Money Trivia

Why does the credit union pay me for looking after my money?

By putting your money in the credit union, you are really letting us use your money for a while. We lend your money to someone else. They pay us interest, and we use that interest to pay you dividends.

Is interest the only way the credit union can earn money?

No. We also earn money by investing in other investments such as certificates and government bonds, and by charging members for some services.

What is a statement?

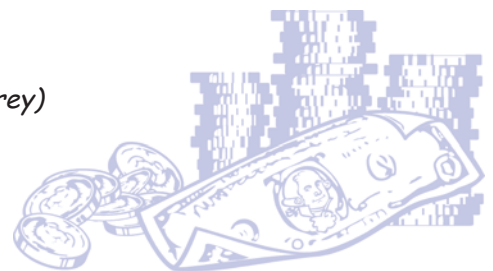

Every three months we send you a statement. This shows you how much money you have at the credit union. It also shows you what deposits you made, and how much in dividends we paid you for keeping your money here.

What relatives of mine can join the credit union?

All of these relatives of yours can join: Your mommy and daddy, grandma and grandpa, aunts and uncles, brothers and sisters, and all your first cousins. If you have a brother or sister who is married, their wife or husband can even join! If you are old enough to have a niece or nephew, they can also join. Do you know how many of your relatives have already joined you in saving at the credit union?
